History

During the course you will learn the following: the significance of events, individuals, issues and societies in history; how and why societies have changed over time; about the theories of historians and the language that they use to discuss their ideas; to understand the nature of historical evidence and the methods used by historians to analyse and evaluate it; to develop an understanding of how the past has been interpreted and represented; to express your own historical ideas confidently and effectively. You will also cover a period exceeding 200 years of chronology.

The course will appeal to students who have an interest in the way that the world has developed through the ages, particularly between the early modern and modern periods; who enjoy investigation and discovery; who enjoy debate and like putting forward a well-argued case; who want to improve their analytical skill; who want to study a subject which encourages them to consider evidence and make up their own minds. It is recommended that you have at least a GCSE Grade B in History. You may still be accepted onto the course if you have not studied History at Key Stage 4, however you will be required to meet with the Head of Department to discuss your suitability. You must have secured at least a GCSE Grade B in English Language.

ASSESSMENT & CONTENT

Year 1

Unit 1: Britain, c1785-c1870, Protest and Reform (1D)

Unit 2: German Unification 1840 - 1871

Year 2

Unit 3: Civil Rights and Race Relations in the USA: 1850-2009(D9 - 39.1);

Unit 4: Coursework

All students will undertake an historical investigation, producing a 3,000-4,000 word essay on 'The Reasons of the Start of the Cold War'. All students will undertake the same investigation but will independently choose five different academic works, from a selection of twelve texts, to reference.

Units are examined by written paper, except for unit 4 which is assessed through submitting coursework. For some units you will be provided with source documents to use in your answers. The exams for units 1 and 3 are 2 hours 30 minutes in total whilst the exam for unit 2 is 1 hour 30 minutes. The coursework unit includes the examination of source materials and the analysis of at least three different historian's interpretations.

By the end of the course you will have learned how to evaluate and analyse information, how to weigh up evidence and how to communicate complex ideas effectively. These skills are recognised and valued by employers, universities and colleges. History combines well with maths and science subjects to create an attractive portfolio of qualifications enabling students to move on to a university science based course.

One of our student says.... 'I enjoy History because the skills you use can be transferred across to so many other subjects.'

The course requirements...
